DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

Syllabus for English PG course

Course-structure: Semester: English

(CBCS)

The Dept. of English Vidyasagar University is offering M.A. Course in English under the Semester CBCS system with the following syllabus.

The syllabus assumes in the students an interest in higher learning and aims at equipping them for an academic career. This syllabus has been framed keeping in mind the recommendations of the CDC regarding various emerging areas in English Studies.

The Post graduate programme in this system will be divided into 18 (eighteen) core courses (of 50 marks each) and 2 (two) Extra-Departmental courses and will consist of Four Semesters to be covered in two years: the First and the Second Semesters in the first year, and the Third and the Fourth in the second year. For each course: Total marks: 50 (Theoretical Exam: 40; Internal Assessment: 10). We offer two extra-departmental courses as a part of Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) one each in the Second Semester (Course No 204) and in the Third Semester (Course No 304).

Each Course is divided into three units. Essay type questions of 14 marks each will be set on texts from all the three units, of which a candidate will answer any two ($14 \times 2 = 28$). A candidate will be required to write 3 comments on lines/phrases/ scenes/episodes taken from these texts, by choosing one from each unit ($4 \times 3 = 12$).

In the 4th Semester Courses 402 and 403 will consist of 2 optional papers each and Course 404, of 3 optional papers. A candidate will choose one optional paper for each of these courses.

SEMESTER: I

Course No: 101: Poetry I (Medieval to Pre-Romantic)

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

This course is devised for providing an overview of poetic literature from the Age of Chaucer to the pre-Romantic period in the history of English literature. The major landmark was the work of Chaucer (c. 1343–1400), especially The Canterbury Tales. During the Renaissance, especially the late 16th and early 17th centuries, major works of drama and poetry were produced by Spenser, Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Donne and other writers. Another great poet, from later in the 17th century, was Milton (1608–74), author of Paradise Lost (1667). The late 17th and the early 18th centuries are particularly associated with the genre of satire, especially in the poetry of Dryden and Pope. The poet, painter, and printmaker William Blake (1757–1827) was another major precursor of Romantic poetry. Largely disconnected from the major streams of the literature of the time, Blake was generally ignored during his lifetime, but is now considered a seminal figure in the history of both the poetry and visual arts of the early Romantic period. This course contains representative texts of all these poets.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Understand key concepts of medieval and pre-romantic poems included in the syllabus
2. Become acquainted with the spirit of the middle ages and the pre-Romantic period as reflected through certain poetic texts.
3. Account for the role of context(s) in the production, reception, and transmission of major literary works till the 18th century.
4. Engage analytically with existing criticism and interpretations of pre-Romantic poetry, and work independently on practical as well as theoretical problems of literary analysis and interpretation

5. Carry out an independent research project under supervision, in accordance with applicable norms for literary research
6. Analyse a wide range of problems relating to literary and historical scholarship

Course details:

Unit 01: Chaucer: Prologue to the Canterbury Tales; Spenser: The Faerie Queene Bk I, Shakespeare's sonnets (selections) [Any two]

Unit 02: Donne: 'The Canonization', 'The Exstasie'; Marvell: 'The Garden' 'An Horatian Ode Upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland'; Milton: Paradise Lost Book IV [Any two]

Unit 03: Pope: 'Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot'; Blake: Selections from Songs of Innocence and Songs of Experience, Dryden: 'Absalom and Achitophel' [Any two]

Course No: 102: Drama I (Medieval to Romantic)

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

This section covers the progress of British drama over the centuries. The Morality drama, represented here by the anonymous play Everyman, marked the beginnings of a rich dramatic tradition. Set within the eschatological framework of Christian theology, this early play explored, however crudely, the problem of evil that has continued to haunt English drama down the ages. Marlowe's Doctor Faustus and Shakespeare's Measure for Measure or King Lear, for that matter, have taken this tradition to newer heights. The Tempest, a representative play of the last phase of the Shakespearean canon, has become the paradigmatic text of the post-colonial era with its almost uncanny insights into the nuanced relationship between the colonizer and the colonized. Ben Jonson's Volpone and Congreve's The Way of the World, included in this section, represent the tradition of satirical comedy that ballasts the romantic tradition. If Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer and Shelley's Prometheus Unbound are too diverse in spirit to be mentioned in the same breath, they may well illustrate the variety within this dramatic tradition.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Understand key concepts of drama-texts included in the syllabus.
2. Refer to relevant contemporary literary theories.
3. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
4. Prepare and present papers, and address the questions asked.
5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes.
6. Contest in competitive examinations—written and interactive—related to teaching at all levels.

Course details:

Unit 01: Everyman; Marlowe: Doctor Faustus, Jonson: Volpone (Any two)

Unit 02: Shakespeare: King Lear, The Tempest, A Midsummer Night's Dream (Any two)

50 marks(6 credits)

Fictional and Non-fictional Prose – 18th and 19th Centuries

Course description:

The first unit of the course comprises texts (Robinson Crusoe, Tom Jones and Tristram Shandy) that are significant with reference to the rise of the Novel as a literary genre in the 18th Century. The first two texts to a fair extent follow the form and genre of Picaresque novel although the plot of Tom Jones is never episodic as in a Picaresque novel. Tristram Shandy is markedly different from the two other texts for here the newly found form of the novel has been turned upside down and inside out. It has been extremely influential on the fictional writing of the 20th Century. The second unit includes three canonical novels of the Victorian Age (Great Expectations, Middlemarch and Tess of the D'urbervilles) each representative of the novelists, respectively Charles Dickens, George Eliot and Thomas Hardy. Three non-fictional prose works of the 18th and 19th Centuries including an early feminist text by Mary Wollstonecraft, selections from the periodical essays of Addison and Dr Johnson's celebrated "Life of Cowley" in which Dr Johnson critiques Metaphysical Poetry come under the third unit.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Understand key concepts of 18th and 19th century fictional and non-fictional prose writings included in the syllabus.
2. Account for the role of context(s) in the production, reception, and transmission of major literary works of the Romantic and Victorian ages
3. Express Concepts through Writing
4. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes
6. Contest in competitive examinations—written and interactive—related to teaching at all levels.

Course details:

Unit 01: Defoe: Robinson Crusoe; Fielding: Tom Jones, Sterne: Tristram Shandy (Any two)

Unit 02: Dickens: Great Expectations; George Eliot: Middlemarch; Hardy: Tess of the D'urbervilles, (Any two)

Course No: 104: Poetry II (19th Century)

50marks (6 credits)

The course is designed to provide a map of nineteenth century British poetry. Unit-1 and part of Unit-2 deal with some of the representative texts of what we call Romantic poetry. Students are expected to learn about how and when Romanticism came to be used as a term describing a trend as well as a period in English literature. Unit-3 and part f Unit-2 include some representative texts from Victorian poetry to give the students an idea about the major concerns of the age.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain knowledge of representative texts of Romantic poetry.
2. Become acquainted with the spirit of the Victorian age as reflected through certain poetic texts.

3. Account for the role of context(s) in the production, reception, and transmission of major literary works of the Romantic and Victorian ages
4. Engage analytically with existing criticism and interpretations of 18th and 19th century poetry, and work independently on practical as well as theoretical problems of literary analysis and interpretation
5. Carry out an independent research project under supervision, in accordance with applicable norms for literary research
6. Analyse a wide range of problems relating to literary and historical scholarship

Course details:

Unit 01: Wordsworth: Prelude BK I / Coleridge: 'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner', 'Kubla Khan';/ Byron: 'Childe Harold's Pilgrimage', First Canto (Any two)

Unit 02: Keats: Induction to 'Fall of Hyperion' / 'Ode to Psyche', 'Ode on Melancholy' / Tennyson: In Memoriam (selections) / Matthew Arnold: The Scholar Gipsy, Shakespeare (Any two)

Course No: 105: Field Survey and Documentation of Dalit and Tribal Cultural Texts 50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

In order to facilitate the ongoing field survey and documentation of Dalit and Tribal Cultural Texts under the UGC SAP-DRS II programme in the Department of English, this new course has been designed with a view to accommodating the students' inputs as far as practicable. The basic objective of the course is to acquaint the students with the thrust area of the departmental research scheme. They would also be made familiar with the methods and methodologies of field survey and documentation. The findings of the students would also be discussed in workshops and seminars and some of them may be part of the publication schedule of the department in future.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Document and analyse the oral literary tradition of Dalit and Tribal communities
2. Translate published specimens of local literature into English.
3. Express Concepts through Writing
4. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
5. Carry out an independent research project under supervision, in accordance with applicable norms for literary research
6. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes

SEMESTER II

Course No: 201: Drama II (19th and 20th Centuries)

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

If the 'well-made' plays of Jones and Pinero lacked the stylistic sophistication of an Oscar Wilde or a Bernard Shaw, it must be said in fairness to them that they, at any rate, tried to salvage English drama from the morass of sentimentality where it lay at the moment. The Importance of Being Earnest, included in this section, is a typical Wildean play, its hall-mark being scintillating wit and satire. But the more decisive influence in altering the course of English drama was undoubtedly that of Bernard Shaw. The play, Saint Joan, represents the group of plays embodying the Shavian interpretation of history which derives its uniqueness from the philosophical underpinnings which Shaw provides in the famous preface to this play. Ibsen's Doll's House, a Norwegian play in translation, is included for its distinct bearings upon British drama. Synge's The Playboy of the Western World and Galsworthy's Justice have been included as two other important dramatic landmarks. Murder in the Cathedral appearing in this section cheek by jowl with the absurdist plays of Pinter and Stoppard may again illustrate the continual theatrical tradition of experimenting with form and content on English stage.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Understand key concepts of 19th and 20th century drama-texts included in the syllabus.
2. Refer to relevant contemporary literary theories
3. Express concepts through writing
4. Prepare and present papers, and address the questions asked.

5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes.
6. Contest in competitive examinations—written and interactive—related to teaching at all levels.

Course details:

Unit 01: Wilde: Importance of Being Earnest; Synge: Playboy of the Western World, Galsworthy: Justice (Any two)

Fictional and Non-fictional Prose II (19th and 20th Century Texts)

Course description:

The first unit of the course comprises three non-fictional prose pieces from the 19th and 20th Centuries. Culture and Anarchy has a sub-title “An Essay in Political and Social Criticism” which points to Matthew Arnold’s intentions for he saw the England of his time in political, social and religious ferment and sought the remedy in culture. Eminent Victorians by Lytton Strachey establishes the tradition of modern biography and of ‘debunking’ the Victorians. The ‘Conclusion’ to Studies in the History of the Renaissance by Pater is the manifesto of the Aesthetic Movement. The remaining two units of the course include fictions. Lawrence’s Sons and Lovers and Joyce’s A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man are masterpieces in the domain of autobiographical novel. The second one is a classic example of Kunstlerroman. The course also includes representative examples of ‘psychological’ and ‘stream of consciousness’ novel, respectively Heart of Darkness and To the Lighthouse. Greene’s Brighton Rock is a novel of adventure and at the same time a novel of ideas.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain firsthand knowledge of representative 19th and 20th century fictional and non-fictional prose pieces.
2. Become acquainted with influential criticism of and commentary on 19th and 20th century fictional and non-fictional prose pieces.
3. account for the role of context(s) in the production, reception, and transmission of major literary works of the Victorian and Modern ages
4. Express Concepts through Writing
5. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
6. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes

Course details:

SEMESTER III

Course 301: Literary Theory and Criticism I

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

Literary criticism is the study, evaluation, and interpretation of literary works. Modern literary criticism is often influenced by theories of literature, which are in the nature of a philosophical deliberation on literature's goals and methods. Literary criticism has probably existed for as long as literature. In the 4th century BC Aristotle wrote the Poetics, a typology and description of literary forms with many specific criticisms of contemporary works of art. Poetics developed for the first time the concepts of ‘mimesis’ and ‘catharsis’, which are still crucial in literary study. Plato’s attacks on poetry as imitative, secondary, and false were formative as well. The literary criticism of the Renaissance developed classical ideas of unity of form and content into literary neoclassicism, proclaiming literature as central to culture, entrusting the poet and the author with preservation of a long literary tradition. The British Romantic movement of the early nineteenth century introduced new aesthetic ideas to literary study, including the idea that the object of literature need not always be beautiful, noble, or perfect, but that literature itself could elevate a common subject to the level of the sublime. This course includes critical works of all the major literary critics from Plato and Aristotle up to Wordsworth, Coleridge and Keats.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain sufficient exposure to literary critics and their respective theories from the classical era to the English Romantic period
2. Understand various positions or stances taken by critical theorists towards an evaluation of literature in general as well as specific literary texts
3. Locate the critical concepts and theories in specific historical, cultural and political context.
4. Use literary concepts and theories to structure and formulate arguments
5. Prepare and present papers on theory as well as on literature in general
6. Contest in competitive examinations—written and interactive—related to teaching at all levels.

Literary Theory and Criticism II

Course description:

This course emphasizes topics ranging from late Victorian and early modern critical approaches linking culture to literature, contextualizing “individual talents” within their “tradition” and drawing attention to “practical criticism” vis-a-vis literary artifact. It explores the epistemological, ontological and semantic use of terms by relating them to modern and postmodern theories and, thus, maps the multidisciplinary nature of 20th and 21st century literary studies. Through a survey of the ideologies of some of the most illustrious figures of the last century, this course also defines the scope and function of ‘Theory’ in ‘belated’ readings of literatures. While the essays of Matthew Arnold, T.S. Eliot and I.A Richards help in tracing the ‘liberal humanist’, ‘high modernist’ and psychology-oriented ‘new criticism’ of texts, the study of Critical Terms reveal the applicability of Theory in locating texts within their contexts. Study of the seminal ideas of Sigmund Freud, Roman Jakobson, and Roland Barthes not only connects critical concepts to their philosophical background and cultural milieu but suggests the return of ‘Theory’ to its etymological root theorein (a “practice of travel and observation ...”). As this course organizes approaches to literary texts through the functional application of ‘Theory’ it critiques them as the archives and productions of culture.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain sufficient exposure to literary critics and their respective theories from the Victorian era to the Modernist period
2. Understand various positions or stances taken by critical theorists towards an evaluation of literature in general as well as specific literary texts
3. Locate the critical concepts and theories in specific historical, cultural and political context.
4. Use literary concepts and theories to structure and formulate arguments
5. Prepare and present papers on theory as well as on literature in general
6. Contest in competitive examinations—written and interactive—related to teaching at all levels.

Course 303: Colonialism and Post-colonialism

50 mark(6 credits)

Course description:

This course highlights the shift of paradigm that is effected by Euro-centric colonial enterprise and the postcolonial counter-discourse produced by the colonizer-colonized interface. Through readings of Tagore's Nationalism, Fanon's Wretched of the Earth and Ngugi's Decolonizing the Mind it interrogates Euro-centric notions of the centre and the margins. Reading literary texts in tandem with Homi Bhabha's thesis on the ambivalent relationships involved in the encounter between the colonizer and its 'Other', with Edward Said's discussions about binary oppositions created by 'Orientalism' and with Bill Ashcroft's attempt to archive the 'Empire' writing back against its master(s) through the master's language, this course extends the scope of literature and its praxis. Its main focus is to show how, after postcolonial interventions, literary and critical studies are no longer "naturally 'at home' in the West" (James Clifford). By reading such works as E.M.Forster's Passage to India, J.M Coetzee's Foe, Wole Soyinka's Dance of the Forestand poems written by A.D. Hope and Derek Walcott, students would be capable of assessing the impact of locational destabilization, contested subjectivities and power relations upon cultures and literatures. Using the critical tools of Postcolonial Studies this course attempts to interpret texts as sites of conflicting and conflicted histories and identities, as sites which challenge and subvert those omnipotent definitions produced in and by the West. There is a consistent effort to explore both the paradoxical relationship of Colonial and Postcolonial literatures and the complex power structures involved in the formation of canonical discourse(s).

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain a coherent knowledge and a critical understanding of colonial and post-colonial literature and its key historical, cultural and theoretical developments.
2. Become acquainted with how race, class, gender, history, and identity are presented and problematised in the literary texts.
3. Undertake a revisionary reading to discover the hidden voices within a text and realize while focusing on an interrogation of the Western canon.
4. Critically evaluate arguments and assumptions about colonial and postcolonial literature, texts, and modes of interpretation.
5. Critically look at the rising trends of globalization, capitalism and multi-culturalism.
6. Develop interpretative skills of close reading, skills of critical reading, oral presentation and analytical writing.

Course 304: Introduction to Critical Theory and Cultural Studies 50 marks (4 credits)

Course description:

This course is designed to introduce students of different disciplines to problems and concepts of contemporary critical theory and cultural studies. Modern critical theories can only be understood adequately if they are placed in the right philosophical, aesthetic, socio-economic and political context. The students will read and discuss works of critical theory, highlighting the fundamental questions they ask and answer, and examining how they can be relevant to the study of literature and culture. Students will learn how to identify suitable objects of inquiry, to do research, and to develop and present arguments according to the norms of literary and cultural studies. The course emphasizes on interdisciplinary approaches to exploring how cultural processes and artifacts are produced, shaped, distributed, consumed and responded to in diverse ways.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Discuss and analyse cultural texts using a wide range of theoretical approaches, in particular those that consider how class, gender, sexuality, nationality and race are represented in popular texts.
2. Identify, analyse, and address the specific structural location of cultural issues and debates, and propose creative and effective interventions.
3. Recognize, critically address, and collaboratively negotiate cultural diversity and difference in a variety of educational and institutional sites.
4. Effectively move from project conception to project execution through the use of both critical and immersive techniques that engage specific publics.
5. Create a dynamic portfolio of work that provides the opportunity for reflection and showcases examples of research and collaboration.
6. Engage in professional positions as researchers, educators, activists, artists, and problem-solvers in a variety of cultural and organizational arenas.

Semester IV

Course 401: American Literature

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

This course provides an overview of American literature beginning with a period generally known as the American Renaissance. The term American Renaissance was coined by F.O. Matthiessen in his seminal work of American literary criticism American Renaissance: Art and Expression in the Age of Emerson and Whitman (1941) referring to the writings just before the American Civil War starting from around 1830s. Herman Melville's masterpiece Moby Dick with its greater theme of death and the transcendental nature of Walt Whitman's poetry collection Leaves of Grass became some of the greatest works of American Literary tradition that paved the way for future American writers. Other major writers of the 20th century include Hemingway who typified the image of the lost generation post World War I, Nobel laureate Toni Morrison and her black narratives. Major playwrights include Arthur Miller whose Death of a Salesman brought out the themes of loss of identity and the warped vision of the American dream while also sharing the theme of inability to relate to reality with Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie. Lorraine Hansberry's Raisin in the Sun is another major work which deals with the theme of dreams and the attainment of the same. The course also deals with major 20th century poets such as Robert Frost who asked major questions about existence and Sylvia Plath whose poems are filled with death and despair.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Identify the salient features of representative literary texts from across all periods of American Literature
2. Contextualize the production and reception of literary texts.
3. Identify major theories related to literature and apply those theoretical approaches to a wide range of texts within American Literature.
4. Locate, analyse and collate available secondary resources for researching a scholarly topic within American Literature
5. Write papers that construct logical and informed arguments
6. Prepare and deliver effective oral presentations and arguments

Course details:

Unit I: Melville: Moby Dick/ Hemmingway: The Old Man and the Sea/ Toni Morrison: The Bluest Eye [Any two]

Unit 02: Miller: Death of a Salesman/ Tennessee Williams: The Glass Menagerie/ Hansberry: Raisin in the Sun (Any two)

Course 402: Special Paper — I

50 MARKS (6 CREDITS)

Option A: Literature of the Indian Sub-Continent: Fiction and Non-Fiction in English

Course description:

This optional course basically comprises Indian English fictions with the exception of Mahatma Gandhi's My Experiments with Truth which is a non-fictional prose work. Apart from Gandhi's work, the first unit includes two texts: Bankim Chandra's Rajmohan's Wife is the first Indian English novel and Tagore's Home and the World is a translated work from the Bengali original. The second unit includes Indian English novels by three literary giants who are contemporaries: Mulk Raj Anand, Raja Rao and R.K. Narayan. Coolie is marked by a missionary zeal for social reformation whereas Kanthapura is a socio-political novel and is described as a "Gandhipurana". The Guide, is a story of "enforced sainthood", to quote Narayan's own words, but perhaps more than that. The third unit is wholly devoted to translations: Samskara is a translation from Kannada and Godan is from Hindi. The English translations of select partition stories (originally written in Urdu) of Saadat Hasan Manto, a Pakistan-based writer, also come under this course.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Gain a comprehensive idea of the origin, growth and development of Indian English novel.
2. Account for the role of context(s) in the production, reception, and transmission of major literary works of Indian Literature
3. Express Concepts through Writing
4. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes

6. Contribute to innovative thinking both within and outside of the sphere of English literary studies

Course 404: Special Paper — III

50 MARKS (6 CREDITS)

Option A: Diasporic Literature

Course description:

Given the context of Postcolonial discourse(s) and contemporary Indian writing in English this course intends to underscore the importance of Diasporic Studies through readings of fictional works like Rohinton Mistry's Such a Long Journey, Bharati Mukherjee's Jasmine, Amitav Ghosh's Shadow Lines, Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children, Bapsi Sidhwa's Ice Candy Man, Jhumpa Lahiri's Interpreter of Maladies. It also offers substantial insight into the theoretical aspect of Diasporic Studies through selections from Salman Rushdie's Imaginary Homelands, Stuart Hall's Cultural Identity and Diaspora and selections from Interrogating Post-colonialism edited by Harish Trivedi and Meenakshi Mukherjee. The texts covered here not only engage with the trajectory of dislocation and displacement that is defined, today, by the term 'diaspora', it not only attempts to theorize 'diaspora' as a "way of thinking, or of representing the world" (John McLeod), it also cross-examines monolithic notions of nationality and exposes the ruptures that exist within the apparently homogenous and homogenized notions of the nation-state. This course shows how, in today's world of constant transcultural and transnational dispersions, re-rooting, movement and re-settlement, the text emerges as a kind of tour through an intricate matrix of diasporic conjectures, disputed histories, hybrid identities and in-between spaces. It helps re-define the 'diasporic imaginary' called India.

Learning outcome:

1. Understand key concepts of diasporic literature included in the syllabus.
2. Refer to relevant contemporary literary theories
3. Express Concepts through Writing
4. Prepare and present papers, and address the questions asked.
5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes.
6. Enhance their knowledge skills for other related professional domains.

Course details:

Unit I: Rohinton Mistry: Such a Long Journey/ Bharati Mukherjee: Jasmine/ Amitav Ghosh: The Shadow Lines [any two]

Unit 02: Salman Rushdie: Midnight's Children/ Bapsi Sidhwa: Ice Candy Man/ Jhumpa Lahiri: Namesake (selections)[any two]

Option B: Dalit Literature

Course description:

Dalit literature, or literature about the untouchables, an oppressed Indian caste under the rigid Hindu caste hierarchy, forms an important and distinct part of bhasha literature. Dalit literature emerged in the 1960s, starting with Marathi language on the western coast. It soon appeared in Hindi, Kannada, Telugu and Tamil languages in the south through narratives such as poems, short stories, and, mostly autobiographies, which stood out due to their stark portrayal of reality and the Dalit political scene. An Anthology of Dalit Literature, edited by Mulk Raj Anand and Eleanor Zelliot, and Poisoned Bread: Translations from Modern Marathi Dalit Literature, originally published in three volumes and later collected in a single volume, edited by Arjun Dangle, both published in 1992, were perhaps the first books that made visible this new genre of writing throughout India. This course includes representative texts of Bama, Omprakash Valmiki and Laxman Rao Gaikwad to provide a glimpse of contemporary Dalit writings in India. Ambedkar's essay is also a significant part of the course sensitizing the learners about the seminal role played by this great Dalit leader. Limbale's essay on Dalit aesthetics is a very useful guide to the reading of Dalit texts. The inclusive character of the course is made apparent with the inclusion of Bangla Dalit short fiction in English translation.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Understand a different discourse from Dalit's perspective which for a long time was not visible in literary terrain.
2. Discover various new perspectives for the study of India such as foregrounding dignity and humiliation as key ethical categories in the shaping of political struggles and ideological agendas in India.
3. Refer to relevant theories unique to an understanding of Dalit Literature
4. Express Concepts through Writing
5. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes.

Course No: 405: Students' Seminar

50 marks (6 credits)

Course description:

The students will select topics from across the courses offered as part of their post-graduate syllabus. The students will also verify the feasibility of their topics with the faculty members of the department. After verifying, the students will then start writing their papers consisting of around 1500 words. Each student will be given 10 minutes for presenting his/her paper followed by an interaction session. They will be marked on the basis of the content of the paper, their presentation skill and argument. Participation in the interaction process will also be considered for evaluation.

Learning outcome:

After the completion of this course the students will be able to:

1. Prepare term papers on crucial theoretical engagements in literary and cultural studies by assimilating important methodological approaches.
2. Express Concepts through Writing
3. Demonstrate conceptual and textual understanding in tests and exams
4. Develop adequate theoretical and technical training to take up area-specific research in M.Phil. and Ph.D. programmes
5. Enhance their knowledge skills for other related professional domains.
